Make My Holidays

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First and foremost, I would like to express my deepest gratitude to the Almighty Allah for granting me the strength, patience, and perseverance to successfully complete this internship and the corresponding report.

I extend my sincere appreciation to Make My Holidays for providing me the opportunity to be a part of their esteemed organization. It has been a great honour to intern within their dynamic marketing and customer engagement division, where I have gained invaluable practical experience and professional insight into the travel and tourism industry.

My heartfelt thanks go to my academic supervisor at the university, Mr. Rubaiyat Shabbir, Assistant Professor and Chairman, Department of Tourism and Hospitality Management, for his continuous support, valuable feedback, and kind encouragement throughout the entire process. His guidance was instrumental in aligning my academic goals with real-world experience.

I am also deeply thankful to my company supervisor, Mr. Rezanul Islam, whose mentorship, patience, and constructive feedback helped me grow as a professional. His detailed instructions and inspiring leadership played a vital role in shaping my contributions during the internship.

I would also like to thank the entire team at Make My Holidays for maintaining such a collaborative and inclusive work environment. Their commitment to excellence and customer satisfaction deeply influenced my professional development.

Finally, I wish to acknowledge my family and friends for their unwavering support, motivation, and encouragement during this period. Their belief in me helped me stay focused and determined throughout the internship.

This experience has been a milestone in my academic and career journey, and I am truly grateful to everyone who made it possible.

Executive Summary

This internship report presents a comprehensive reflection on a three-month internship experience at Make My Holidays, a leading travel agency operating in Bangladesh. The internship was conducted from 1st January, 2026 to 31st March, 2026, under the supervision of Mr. Rezanul Islam. The report explores individual learning outcomes alongside a broader investigation into the evolving landscape of digital marketing strategies and customer engagement practices within the travel and tourism industry.

The report begins with an overview of the global and national travel and tourism industry, highlighting its significance as an economic driver and the transformative impact of digital technologies on how travel agencies attract, engage, and retain customers. Special attention is paid to the rise of social media marketing, search engine optimization, content marketing, and data-driven customer relationship management (CRM) practices.

A detailed organizational overview of Make My Holidays follows, including its history, mission, services, and strategic positioning in the Bangladeshi travel market. The report examines the agency's digital marketing infrastructure, tools used such as Facebook Ads Manager, Google Analytics, Canva, and the leadership of key personnel. The report integrates internal and external environment analyses, including SWOT, PESTEL, and Porter's Five Forces frameworks, to assess the agency's competitive standing and strategic opportunities.

The internship experience is critically reviewed, focusing on tasks related to digital content creation, social media management, customer communication, and campaign monitoring. The report discusses key skills gained, including digital marketing proficiency, customer service communication, creative content development, and analytical reporting. Challenges encountered and the adaptive strategies employed to overcome them are also documented.

A chapter on Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) and ethics underscores Make My Holidays' commitment to responsible tourism, inclusive service delivery, and transparent business practices. The report concludes with strategic recommendations for the agency to strengthen its digital marketing capabilities, expand customer engagement initiatives, and sustain competitive advantage in the evolving travel industry.

CHAPTER – 01

INTRODUCTION

1.1 Introduction

Internships serve as a critical bridge between academic learning and the professional world. They provide students with practical exposure to industry operations, organizational dynamics, and real-world business challenges. This report is the outcome of a three-month internship conducted at Make My Holidays, a travel agency operating in the digital tourism space in Bangladesh. The internship spanned from 1st January, 2026 to 31st March, 2026, and was supervised by Mr. Rezanul Islam at the company and academically guided by Mr. Rubaiyat Shabbir, Assistant Professor and Chairman of the Department of Tourism and Hospitality Management at Gopalganj Science and Technology University.

The travel and tourism industry has undergone a profound digital transformation over the past decade. With the proliferation of smartphones, social media platforms, and online booking systems, the way customers discover, plan, and book travel has fundamentally shifted. According to the World Tourism Organization (UNWTO, 2024), over 70% of travellers now begin their journey planning process online, and nearly half rely on social media for travel inspiration. This growing reliance on digital channels has compelled travel agencies to rethink their marketing strategies and customer engagement models.

Make My Holidays represents a new generation of travel businesses that have embraced digital marketing as their primary mode of customer acquisition and retention. The agency offers a diverse range of services, including customized tour packages, airline ticketing, hotel bookings, visa assistance, and corporate travel solutions. Its marketing approach is anchored in targeted digital campaigns, engaging social media content, search engine optimization, and personalized email communication.

This report begins by contextualizing the growth of the travel and tourism sector in Bangladesh, highlighting how digital platforms have disrupted traditional travel agency models. It then provides a detailed organizational profile of Make My Holidays, followed by an analysis of the specific tasks and responsibilities undertaken during the internship. The report also applies strategic frameworks such as SWOT, PESTEL, and Porter's Five Forces to assess the agency's competitive environment.

Through a critical reflection on this internship experience, this report aims to demonstrate how digital marketing knowledge and customer engagement skills are essential for modern travel and hospitality professionals. The insights presented offer a comprehensive understanding of how digital transformation is reshaping the travel industry, and the vital role that skilled marketing professionals play in sustaining competitive advantage within this dynamic sector.

1.2 Rationale of the Study

Bangladesh's travel and tourism industry is experiencing significant growth, driven by rising disposable incomes, increasing internet penetration, and growing aspirations for both domestic and international travel. In this rapidly evolving context, travel agencies are under increasing pressure to adopt sophisticated digital marketing strategies and deliver seamless customer experiences across multiple digital touchpoints.

The rationale behind this study lies in understanding how a modern travel agency like Make My Holidays leverages digital marketing tools and platforms to attract customers, build brand awareness, and maintain long-term engagement. This is particularly relevant for students and aspiring professionals in tourism and hospitality management, as digital marketing has become an indispensable competency in the industry.

Through this internship at Make My Holidays, I have had the opportunity to observe and participate in live digital marketing campaigns, customer communication processes, and performance analytics reviews. This first-hand exposure provides unique insights into the practical application of marketing theories learned in academic settings. By analysing the agency's strategies through established business frameworks, this report also contributes to a broader understanding of how small to medium travel enterprises can compete effectively in an increasingly digitized marketplace.

1.3 Objectives of the Report

The primary objective of this internship report is to document and critically reflect on the three-month internship experience at Make My Holidays. The report also aims to fulfil several academic and professional objectives:

General Objectives:

- To understand the structure, workflow, and business operations of a digital-first travel agency in Bangladesh.
- To reflect on the practical experience gained during the internship period.
- To evaluate how travel agencies like Make My Holidays leverage digital marketing to enhance customer engagement and business growth.

Specific Objectives:

- To describe the digital marketing tasks and responsibilities undertaken during the internship.
- To assess the tools and platforms used for marketing and customer management, including Facebook Ads Manager, Google Analytics, Canva, and Mailchimp.
- To explore the strategies and approaches used for social media management, content creation, and customer engagement.
- To identify key challenges faced during the internship and strategies employed to overcome them.
- To analyse Make My Holidays' competitive positioning using SWOT, PESTEL, and Porter's Five Forces frameworks.

- To develop a clear understanding of how this internship aligns with long-term career goals in tourism marketing and customer experience management.

1.4 Scope of the Report

The scope of this report extends across three primary areas: the organizational structure and digital marketing operations of Make My Holidays, the tasks and experiences accumulated during the internship, and the broader industry context of digital marketing in travel and tourism.

Firstly, the report examines the business model and operational practices of Make My Holidays, with a particular focus on its digital marketing division. This includes a detailed look at how the agency develops and executes social media campaigns, manages customer inquiries online, creates content for various digital platforms, and utilizes data analytics to optimize marketing performance.

Secondly, the report covers the specific tools and technologies used by the organization, including social media management platforms, graphic design tools, email marketing software, and customer relationship management systems. Understanding these tools provides insight into how modern travel agencies operate in a data-driven, customer-centric environment.

Thirdly, the scope encompasses the broader digital marketing landscape in Bangladesh's travel sector and the strategic importance of customer engagement in sustaining business growth. By situating the internship experience within this national context, the report offers a comprehensive understanding of how digital marketing capabilities are shaping the future of travel agencies.

The scope does not include a financial audit of the agency or a comprehensive review of its offline operations. The focus remains on digital marketing strategies, customer engagement practices, and the operational tools employed within the marketing function.

1.5 Methodology of the Study

The methodology of this report is qualitative in nature, based primarily on first-hand experience, direct observation, and internal documents reviewed during the internship at

Make My Holidays. A case study approach has been adopted to analyse the digital marketing strategies and customer engagement practices of the agency. The aim is to present a realistic picture of how the organization functions, how marketing tasks are assigned and executed, and how digital tools are integrated to achieve business objectives.

Data Collection Methods:

Primary Data:

- Observation: Active participation in day-to-day marketing tasks, including social media posting, campaign monitoring, customer response management, and content creation, provided first-hand insight into the agency's operations.
- Interaction with Supervisor and Colleagues: Regular discussions with Mr. Rezanul Islam and other team members offered valuable perspectives on the agency's marketing strategies and customer service philosophy.
- Workplace Tools: Practical use of tools such as Facebook Ads Manager, Google Analytics, Canva, and Mailchimp was analysed to understand their role in the agency's marketing ecosystem.

Secondary Data:

- Company Website and Internal Documents: Information regarding the agency's mission, services, and client policies was gathered from official materials.
- Academic Sources: Journals, articles, and reports related to digital marketing, tourism management, and customer engagement were used to support theoretical discussions.
- Industry Reports: Publications by UNWTO, Bangladesh Tourism Board, and relevant marketing associations provided contextual data about the broader industry landscape.

This approach enables a thorough understanding of how the organization's marketing strategies align with global industry trends, while also offering grounded insights into practical operations.

1.6 Limitations of the Report

While every effort has been made to ensure the quality and comprehensiveness of this report, several limitations must be acknowledged:

Time Constraints:

The internship spanned a limited period of three months, which restricted the opportunity to observe long-term marketing campaign outcomes or seasonal fluctuations in customer engagement. Findings are based on a specific window of operations rather than a longitudinal analysis.

Focus on a Single Agency:

Although Make My Holidays operates across multiple service categories, this report primarily focuses on the digital marketing and customer engagement division. Insights from other departments such as corporate travel management or visa processing are limited.

Confidentiality Restrictions:

Certain proprietary marketing data, client information, and campaign performance metrics are subject to confidentiality and could not be disclosed in full. This has limited the depth of quantitative analysis in some sections.

Subjectivity of Observation:

As a qualitative report based heavily on personal experience and observation, some findings may reflect the subjective perspective of the intern.

Lack of Industry Benchmarking:

Due to limited availability of publicly accessible data on comparable travel agencies in Bangladesh, comprehensive benchmarking against direct competitors was not entirely possible. Comparative analysis draws on available secondary sources and general industry knowledge.

Despite these limitations, the report provides valuable insights into the digital marketing operations of a modern Bangladeshi travel agency and offers practical reflections useful for both academic and professional development.

CHAPTER – 02

THE TRAVEL AND TOURISM INDUSTRY IN BANGLADESH

2.1 Overview

The travel and tourism industry represents one of the world's largest economic sectors, contributing approximately 10% of global GDP and employing one in ten people worldwide before the COVID-19 pandemic (UNWTO, 2023). In Bangladesh, the tourism sector, though relatively underdeveloped compared to its regional neighbours, has been gaining momentum as a significant contributor to economic activity, employment generation, and cultural exchange. With a rich tapestry of natural landscapes, historical monuments, and cultural heritage, Bangladesh possesses considerable tourism potential that remains largely untapped.

In recent years, the convergence of digital technology and evolving consumer behaviour has transformed how travel services are marketed and consumed in Bangladesh. The widespread adoption of smartphones, social media platforms, and online payment systems has created new opportunities for travel agencies to reach and engage customers more effectively. Agencies like Make My Holidays have capitalized on these developments by building strong digital presences and delivering personalized travel experiences through targeted online campaigns.

2.2 Historical Evolution of the Travel and Tourism Sector

Bangladesh's tourism industry has evolved considerably since the country's independence in 1971. During the initial decades, tourism was largely confined to domestic travel and was not recognized as a priority sector for economic development. The country's tourism potential was constrained by limited infrastructure, inadequate marketing, and a lack of policy focus. Early travel services were primarily provided by government-owned entities and a handful of private operators with limited digital capabilities.

A turning point came with the formulation of the National Tourism Policy in 2010 and subsequent revisions, which recognized tourism as a key pillar of economic diversification. The government began investing in infrastructure development, including the expansion of Cox's Bazar as a premier beach destination, promotion of the Sundarbans mangrove forest, and development of archaeological sites such as Mahasthangarh and Paharpur. These initiatives helped attract both domestic and international visitors.

The proliferation of the internet and mobile technology in the early 2010s ushered in a new era for the travel industry. Online booking platforms, travel blogs, and social media began reshaping consumer preferences and expectations. Private travel agencies, including Make My Holidays, seized this digital opportunity by establishing online presences and adopting digital marketing strategies to compete with both local and international players.

2.3 Economic Contribution and Employment Impact

Tourism contributes significantly to Bangladesh's economy, though its share of GDP remains below its potential. According to the Bangladesh Tourism Board (BTB, 2023), the sector contributed approximately 4.7% to GDP in 2023 and employed over 3.8 million people directly and indirectly. Revenue from inbound tourism, domestic travel, and related services including accommodation, transportation, and dining represents a growing segment of the national economy.

The travel agency sector, as a key component of the broader tourism industry, plays a crucial intermediary role. Agencies like Make My Holidays facilitate access to travel services for individual and corporate clients, generate foreign exchange through outbound tourism facilitation, and create skilled employment opportunities for young graduates in sales, marketing, customer service, and digital operations.

The growth of the travel agency sub-sector has also stimulated demand for complementary services including digital marketing, web development, content creation, and customer analytics. This has created a multiplier effect, generating employment beyond the direct tourism workforce and contributing to the development of Bangladesh's wider service economy.

2.4 Key Sub-Sectors of the Tourism Economy

Bangladesh's tourism industry encompasses several interconnected sub-sectors, each contributing to the overall travel experience:

- Leisure and Holiday Tourism: Domestic and international holiday packages represent a growing segment, driven by rising middle-class aspirations and increased travel awareness.

- Business and Corporate Travel: Corporate clients form a significant revenue stream for agencies like Make My Holidays, requiring specialized services including flight bookings, hotel arrangements, and visa processing.
- Religious and Cultural Tourism: Sites of Islamic heritage, Buddhist monasteries, and Hindu temples attract religious tourists from across the region.
- Adventure and Eco-Tourism: The Chittagong Hill Tracts, Sundarbans, and coastal regions offer significant potential for adventure tourism and nature-based travel.
- Medical Tourism: Cross-border travel to India and Thailand for medical treatment represents a growing segment served by specialized travel agencies.
- Digital Travel Services: Online travel agencies (OTAs) and digitally oriented agencies are reshaping the distribution landscape, offering convenience and competitive pricing.

2.5 Digital Transformation in Tourism

The digital transformation of the travel industry has been among the most profound shifts in the global tourism landscape. According to Phocuswright (2023), online channels now account for over 65% of global travel bookings, a figure that continues to rise annually. In Bangladesh, digital adoption in travel services has accelerated significantly, driven by increasing smartphone penetration, affordable mobile data, and growing familiarity with online transactions.

Social media platforms, particularly Facebook, Instagram, and YouTube, have become primary channels through which travel agencies connect with potential customers. Agencies invest in visually compelling content, destination storytelling, and interactive campaigns to inspire travel and generate leads. Search engine marketing and optimization ensure visibility when customers actively search for travel services. Email marketing enables personalized communication with existing clients, while influencer partnerships amplify brand reach among niche travel audiences.

Make My Holidays has embraced this digital transformation comprehensively, utilizing platforms such as Facebook Ads Manager for targeted advertising, Google Analytics for performance tracking, Canva for creative content production, and Mailchimp for email campaigns. This integrated digital marketing approach has enabled the agency to compete effectively in a crowded marketplace while delivering personalized service experiences.

2.6 Policy and Government Support

The Government of Bangladesh has undertaken several initiatives to promote tourism development and digital adoption within the sector:

- National Tourism Policy 2010: Provided the foundational framework for tourism development, recognizing the sector's economic and cultural significance.
- Bangladesh Tourism Board (BTB): Serves as the primary government body responsible for tourism promotion, research, and policy implementation.

- Digital Bangladesh Vision: Government digitalization initiatives have facilitated the growth of digital commerce, including online travel bookings and digital payment systems.
- Visit Bangladesh 2023 Campaign: A national promotional campaign aimed at attracting international tourists and raising Bangladesh's profile as a travel destination.
- Tax Incentives for Tourism Businesses: Various fiscal measures have been introduced to encourage investment in tourism infrastructure and services.

These policy frameworks have created an enabling environment for private travel agencies to expand their digital capabilities and reach new customer segments. Companies like Make My Holidays have benefited from the broader digital infrastructure development and growing public awareness of Bangladesh as a travel destination.

2.7 Role of the Private Sector in Travel Agency Growth

Private travel agencies represent the primary interface between travelers and the broader tourism ecosystem. Their role has evolved significantly in the digital age, from simple ticket-booking intermediaries to comprehensive travel experience providers. In Bangladesh, private agencies like Make My Holidays have driven innovation in customer service, digital marketing, and product development, often outpacing government tourism bodies in adopting new technologies and practices.

The competitive dynamics of the private travel agency market have encouraged continuous improvement in service quality, pricing, and customer engagement. Agencies have invested in digital marketing capabilities, CRM systems, and customer analytics tools to gain competitive advantages. They have also developed specialized service offerings, including personalized tour packages, corporate travel management programs, and online self-service portals, to meet the diverse needs of their customer base.

Make My Holidays exemplifies this private sector dynamism. The agency has built a strong brand through consistent digital marketing, exceptional customer service, and a diverse portfolio of travel products. Its success demonstrates how private travel agencies can thrive in Bangladesh's evolving tourism landscape by embracing digital tools and prioritizing customer engagement.

2.8 Rise of Online Travel Agencies and Competition

The emergence of online travel agencies (OTAs) such as Booking.com, Expedia, and local platforms has created significant competitive pressure for traditional travel agencies in Bangladesh. OTAs offer consumers direct access to travel services at competitive prices, reducing the need for intermediaries and challenging agencies to demonstrate their value-added proposition.

In response, agencies like Make My Holidays have differentiated themselves by offering personalized service, expert local knowledge, and customized travel experiences that OTAs struggle to replicate. Their competitive advantage lies in building authentic customer relationships, providing tailored advice, and offering end-to-end travel solutions that go beyond simple booking facilitation.

The rise of social media has also created new competitive dynamics, with travel agencies competing for attention not only against each other but also against user-generated content, travel bloggers, and influencers who shape consumer perceptions and travel decisions. Agencies that succeed in this environment are those that invest in compelling content marketing and authentic customer engagement strategies.

2.9 Impact of COVID-19 on the Travel Industry

The COVID-19 pandemic devastated the global travel and tourism industry, with Bangladesh's sector experiencing unprecedented disruption. International travel virtually ceased between 2020 and 2021, while domestic tourism also declined sharply due to movement restrictions and public health concerns. Travel agencies faced severe revenue losses, with many smaller operators forced to close permanently.

However, the pandemic also accelerated several positive transformations. Agencies that survived pivoted rapidly to digital channels, strengthening their online presences and developing new virtual service models. The pandemic reinforced the importance of digital marketing capabilities, as agencies that had already invested in digital channels were better positioned to maintain customer relationships and adapt to changing market conditions.

Make My Holidays navigated the pandemic challenges by doubling down on digital engagement, maintaining active social media presences to keep potential customers inspired about future travel, and pivoting toward domestic travel packages as international

2.10 Challenges in the Travel Agency Sector

Despite positive growth trends, Bangladesh's travel agency sector faces several persistent challenges:

- Digital Skills Gap: Many agencies lack the in-house digital marketing expertise needed to compete effectively in the online space.
- Intense Online Competition: The proliferation of OTAs and digital travel platforms intensifies price competition and reduces margins.
- Customer Trust and Security: Online transactions remain a concern for some customers, requiring agencies to invest in secure payment systems and trust-building communication.
- Regulatory Environment: Inconsistent regulatory frameworks and bureaucratic processes complicate operations, particularly for agencies handling international bookings and visa services.
- Talent Retention: Retaining skilled digital marketing and customer service professionals in a competitive labour market presents ongoing challenges.

2.11 The Future of Bangladesh's Travel and Tourism Industry

Bangladesh's travel and tourism industry stands at a pivotal moment of growth and transformation. With improving infrastructure, growing digital adoption, and increasing international awareness of Bangladesh's tourism assets, the sector has significant potential for expansion. Future trends likely to shape the industry include sustainable tourism development, personalized digital travel experiences, mobile-first booking platforms, and greater integration of artificial intelligence in customer service and marketing.

Agencies like Make My Holidays are well-positioned to capitalize on these trends by continuing to invest in digital capabilities, building authentic customer relationships, and developing innovative travel products tailored to evolving consumer preferences. The future of Bangladesh's travel agency sector belongs to those who embrace digital transformation while maintaining the human touch that distinguishes exceptional travel service from mere commodity transactions.

CHAPTER – 03

DIGITAL MARKETING STRATEGIES AND CUSTOMER ENGAGEMENT IN TRAVEL AGENCIES

3.1 Overview

Digital marketing has emerged as the cornerstone of customer acquisition and engagement strategies for modern travel agencies. The convergence of technology, data analytics, and evolving consumer behaviour has created an environment where travel agencies must maintain sophisticated digital presences across multiple platforms to remain competitive. This chapter explores the key digital marketing strategies employed by travel agencies, with particular reference to the practices observed and implemented during the internship at Make My Holidays.

3.2 Digital Marketing Strategies in Travel

Digital marketing in the travel industry encompasses a broad spectrum of strategies designed to attract potential customers, convert leads into bookings, and retain existing clients through ongoing engagement. The most effective digital marketing approaches combine organic content strategies with paid advertising, leveraging data analytics to continuously optimize performance. For travel agencies in Bangladesh, the primary digital channels include social media platforms, particularly Facebook and Instagram, search engines through SEO and SEM, email marketing, and increasingly, video content on YouTube.

3.3 Social Media Marketing

Social media platforms represent the most impactful digital marketing channel for travel agencies targeting Bangladeshi consumers. Facebook, with its massive user base of over 40 million active users in Bangladesh (DataReportal, 2024), provides unparalleled reach and targeting capabilities. Instagram's visual-first format is particularly well-suited to travel content, inspiring potential customers through stunning destination photography and short-form video content.

Effective social media marketing for travel agencies involves consistent posting of high-quality content, responsive community management, targeted paid advertising, and strategic use of stories and reels for time-sensitive promotions. Make My Holidays maintains an active presence across major social media platforms, using a content calendar to plan and schedule posts, engaging with followers through comments and direct messages, and running targeted advertising campaigns to reach potential customers based on interests, behaviours, and demographic characteristics.

3.4 Search Engine Optimization and SEM

Search engine optimization (SEO) and search engine marketing (SEM) are critical for travel agencies seeking to capture customers who are actively searching for travel services. When a potential customer searches for "tour packages Bangladesh" or "travel agency Dhaka," agencies that appear prominently in search results have a significant competitive advantage. SEO involves optimizing website content, meta descriptions, and technical elements to improve organic search rankings, while SEM involves paid advertising through platforms like Google Ads to ensure visibility for relevant search queries.

During the internship at Make My Holidays, I gained exposure to the agency's approach to search engine marketing, including keyword research, ad copy creation, and campaign performance monitoring. Understanding how to align advertising content with customer search intent and optimize campaign budgets for maximum return on investment proved to be invaluable learning experiences.

3.5 Email and Content Marketing

Email marketing remains one of the most cost-effective channels for travel agencies to maintain relationships with existing customers and nurture leads. Personalized email campaigns announcing new tour packages, special promotions, and destination guides can drive repeat bookings and referrals. Tools such as Mailchimp enable agencies to segment their customer databases, personalize content based on previous booking history or stated preferences, and track engagement metrics to optimize future campaigns.

Content marketing involves creating and distributing valuable, relevant content that attracts and engages a defined audience. For travel agencies, this includes destination guides, travel tips, photography, customer testimonials, and video content. High-quality content not only drives organic traffic and builds brand authority but also provides material for social media sharing and email campaigns, creating a virtuous cycle of content-driven customer engagement.

3.6 Influencer and Affiliate Marketing

Influencer marketing has become increasingly important in the travel sector, as consumers increasingly trust peer recommendations and authentic travel experiences shared by social media personalities over traditional advertising. Travel agencies can partner with travel bloggers, photographers, and social media influencers to reach new audience segments and lend credibility to their service offerings. In Bangladesh, a growing ecosystem of travel content creators has created new opportunities for agencies to amplify their brand messages through authentic, engaging narratives.

3.7 Customer Engagement Approaches

Customer engagement extends beyond the initial booking transaction to encompass the entire customer journey, from inspiration and planning through booking, travel, and post-trip follow-up. Highly engaged customers are more likely to make repeat bookings, provide referrals, and generate positive reviews that attract new clients. Effective customer engagement strategies include responsive communication across all channels, personalized service experiences, loyalty programs, and proactive post-trip feedback solicitation.

Make My Holidays employs a multi-channel customer engagement approach, maintaining responsiveness across social media, email, and phone channels. The agency's customer service philosophy emphasizes prompt response to inquiries, transparent communication about pricing and itineraries, and personalized recommendations based on individual customer preferences and budgets.

3.8 CRM Tools and Technology

Customer Relationship Management (CRM) systems are essential for travel agencies managing large customer databases and complex service delivery processes. CRM tools enable agencies to track customer interactions, manage bookings, monitor service delivery, and analyse customer behaviour patterns to inform marketing decisions. The integration of CRM data with digital marketing platforms enables highly personalized customer communications and targeted campaign delivery.

During the internship at Make My Holidays, I was introduced to the agency's customer management processes and the tools used to maintain customer records and communication histories. This exposure highlighted the importance of systematic customer data management in delivering consistent, personalized service experiences and informing strategic marketing decisions.

3.9 Challenges in Digital Marketing for Travel Agencies

Despite its significant potential, digital marketing presents several challenges for travel agencies in Bangladesh. These include managing the volume and velocity of social media engagement, producing consistent high-quality content within budget constraints, accurately measuring digital marketing return on investment, keeping pace with rapidly evolving platform algorithms and advertising policies, and building the internal digital marketing skills required to execute sophisticated campaigns effectively.

3.10 Future Trends in Travel Digital Marketing

Emerging trends in travel digital marketing include the growing importance of video content, the rise of social commerce where bookings can be initiated directly from social media platforms, increasing personalization powered by artificial intelligence, augmented reality experiences that allow customers to virtually preview destinations, and the growing influence of user-generated content in travel decision-making. Agencies that invest in building capabilities in these areas will be well-positioned to sustain competitive advantage in an increasingly digital marketplace.

OVERVIEW OF ‘MAKE MY HOLIDAYS’

4.1 Company Background and Formation

Make My Holidays is a dynamic, customer-centric travel agency established to serve the growing demand for professional travel services among Bangladeshi consumers. Founded with the vision of making quality travel experiences accessible and affordable, the agency has built a strong reputation for expertise, reliability, and personalized service. Headquartered in Khulna, Bangladesh, Make My Holidays offers a comprehensive range of travel services catering to leisure travelers, corporate clients, and group tour participants.

Since its establishment, the agency has grown steadily by embracing digital marketing as its primary customer acquisition and engagement strategy. The company's digital-first approach has enabled it to reach a wide audience across Bangladesh, positioning it as a trusted partner for travel planning. Its commitment to providing transparent pricing, customized itineraries, and exceptional customer support has earned it a loyal client base and strong word-of-mouth reputation.

4.2 Vision, Mission, and Core Values

Make My Holidays operates with a clear vision and a set of guiding principles:

Vision:

To be Bangladesh's most trusted and innovative travel agency, inspiring customers to explore the world with confidence and joy.

Mission:

To deliver exceptional, personalized travel experiences through expert knowledge, digital innovation, and unwavering commitment to customer satisfaction.

Core Values:

- Customer Focus: Placing customer needs and satisfaction at the heart of every decision.
- Integrity: Maintaining transparency and honesty in all business dealings.
- Innovation: Continuously adopting new technologies and approaches to improve service delivery.
- Excellence: Delivering consistently high standards across all service touchpoints.
- Community: Contributing positively to Bangladesh's tourism ecosystem and local communities.

4.3 Leadership and Organizational Structure

Make My Holidays is led by a team of experienced travel and marketing professionals committed to delivering exceptional customer experiences. The organizational structure supports both operational efficiency and creative marketing execution, with dedicated teams for customer service, digital marketing, tour operations, and corporate travel management.

Mr. Rezanul Islam, who served as my internship supervisor, leads the marketing and customer engagement division. His expertise in digital marketing strategies and customer relationship management has been instrumental in building the agency's strong digital presence and loyal customer base. His approachable leadership style and commitment to mentorship created an excellent learning environment during my internship period.

4.4 Services Offered by Make My Holidays

Make My Holidays offers a diverse portfolio of travel services designed to meet the needs of individual travelers, families, corporate clients, and group tour participants:

- International Tour Packages: Customized and pre-designed packages to popular destinations across Asia, Europe, the Middle East, and beyond.
- Domestic Tour Packages: Curated experiences showcasing Bangladesh's natural and cultural attractions, including Cox's Bazar, Sundarbans, and Sylhet.
- Airline Ticketing: Comprehensive flight booking services for domestic and international routes.
- Hotel Reservations: Accommodation bookings across all categories for domestic and international destinations.
- Visa Assistance: Expert guidance and processing support for visa applications to major international destinations.
- Corporate Travel Management: Specialized services for business travelers, including group bookings, conference travel, and account management.
- Hajj and Umrah Packages: Dedicated religious travel services for Muslim pilgrims.

4.5 Digital Marketing Operations

The digital marketing function at Make My Holidays encompasses social media management, paid advertising, content creation, email marketing, and performance analytics. The agency maintains active presences on Facebook, Instagram, and YouTube, posting regularly to engage existing followers and attract new audiences. Paid advertising campaigns on Facebook and Instagram enable targeted reach to specific demographic and interest-based audience segments.

Content production is central to the agency's digital marketing strategy. The team creates a mix of destination photography, promotional videos, customer testimonials, and informational content to provide value to their audience while showcasing the agency's expertise and service quality. Tools such as Canva streamline the content creation process, enabling the team to produce professional-quality graphics efficiently.

4.6 Market Presence and Client Base

Make My Holidays serves a diverse client base spanning individual leisure travelers, families, young professionals, corporate accounts, and religious pilgrims. The agency's market presence is primarily concentrated in Dhaka, but its digital marketing activities enable it to reach customers across Bangladesh and the diaspora community.

The agency's strong social media following and positive online reputation have been key drivers of customer acquisition. Customer referrals and repeat bookings demonstrate high levels of client satisfaction and trust, providing a solid foundation for sustainable business growth.

4.7 Competitive Positioning

Make My Holidays positions itself as a premium service provider that differentiates on the basis of personalization, expertise, and customer care rather than competing purely on price. The agency's digital marketing capabilities and consistent brand messaging reinforce this positioning, communicating quality and reliability to potential customers across all digital touchpoints.

4.8 Workforce and Talent Strategy

The agency's talent strategy focuses on recruiting individuals with a passion for travel combined with strong digital marketing, customer service, or operational skills. The internship program represents an important element of the talent development strategy, providing young professionals with hands-on experience while contributing fresh perspectives and digital skills to the team.

Training and professional development are prioritized, with team members encouraged to develop expertise across multiple areas including digital advertising, content creation, customer communication, and travel product knowledge. This cross-functional capability building enhances the team's agility and ensures consistent service quality even during peak demand periods.

4.9 Strategic Goals and Growth Plan

Make My Holidays' strategic growth plan centers on expanding its digital marketing capabilities, broadening its product portfolio, and strengthening its corporate client base. Key strategic initiatives include investment in advanced CRM systems to enhance customer personalization, development of a comprehensive loyalty program to drive repeat bookings, expansion of the influencer marketing program to increase brand awareness, and development of new destination packages to capture emerging travel trends.

4.10 Role in Bangladesh's Tourism Development

Beyond its commercial objectives, Make My Holidays plays a meaningful role in supporting Bangladesh's broader tourism development. By promoting domestic travel destinations and creating awareness of Bangladesh's tourism potential, the agency contributes to the growth of the domestic tourism sector. Its corporate travel operations facilitate business connectivity, while its outbound travel services contribute to foreign exchange expenditure that supports international destination economies.

CHAPTER – 05

INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL BUSINESS ENVIRONMENT OF MAKE MY HOLIDAYS

5.1 Overview of Make My Holidays' Business Ecosystem

Make My Holidays operates within a dynamic business ecosystem shaped by the intersection of digital technology, evolving consumer behaviour, and Bangladesh's growing travel market. The agency's business model is built on the foundation of strong digital marketing capabilities, personalized customer service, and a diverse product portfolio that caters to multiple customer segments. Understanding this ecosystem requires analysing both the internal factors that drive the agency's performance and the external environment that shapes its strategic opportunities and challenges.

5.2 Competitor Landscape and Market Positioning

The travel agency market in Bangladesh is increasingly competitive, with traditional agencies competing alongside online travel platforms, global OTAs, and direct booking channels. Key competitors in the digital travel agency space include:

- Tour BD: A well-established Bangladeshi travel agency with strong brand recognition and a broad product portfolio.
- Explore BD: A digital-native travel platform targeting young, tech-savvy travelers with competitive pricing and a strong social media presence.
- Guide Tours: Specializing in adventure and eco-tourism packages, targeting niche customer segments with specialized offerings.
- International OTAs: Global platforms such as Booking.com and Expedia, which compete for online travel bookings.

Competitive Analysis Table:

Criteria	Make My Holidays	Tour BD	Explore BD	Guide Tours
Core Services	Full-service travel + digital marketing	Traditional tour packages	Online packages	Adventure tourism
Digital Presence	Strong, multi-platform	Moderate	Strong	Limited
Customer Focus	Personalized service	General audience	Youth market	Niche adventure
Technology Use	Advanced marketing stack	Basic website	Mobile app	Minimal

Criteria	Make My Holidays	Tour BD	Explore BD	Guide Tours
Market Positioning	Premium personalized	Mass market	Budget digital	Niche specialist

5.3 Digital Tools and Technology Stack

Make My Holidays employs a comprehensive suite of digital marketing tools that collectively enable the agency to plan, execute, monitor, and optimize its marketing activities:

Facebook Ads Manager:

The primary platform for paid social media advertising, enabling the agency to create targeted campaigns based on demographic, geographic, and behavioural parameters. The platform's detailed analytics enable continuous campaign optimization and performance reporting.

Google Analytics:

Used to track website traffic, user behaviour, conversion rates, and campaign performance. Data from Google Analytics informs content strategy decisions and helps identify the most effective channels for customer acquisition.

Canva:

A graphic design platform used extensively for creating social media content, promotional materials, and marketing collateral. Canva's templates and design tools enable the team to produce professional-quality visuals efficiently without specialist design resources.

Mailchimp:

The agency's primary email marketing platform, used for creating and distributing newsletters, promotional offers, and personalized customer communications. Mailchimp's segmentation and automation features enable targeted, relevant email campaigns.

Meta Business Suite:

Used for scheduling social media posts, managing comments and messages, and monitoring social media performance metrics across Facebook and Instagram.

5.4 Organizational Culture and Work Environment

Make My Holidays fosters a dynamic, customer-focused work culture that values creativity, collaboration, and continuous learning. The agency's relatively flat organizational structure enables quick decision-making and encourages team members to take initiative and contribute ideas. This entrepreneurial culture drives innovation in marketing approaches and customer service delivery.

The work environment is characterized by a strong passion for travel among team members, which translates into authentic enthusiasm in customer communications and marketing content. Team members are encouraged to share their own travel experiences and knowledge, enriching the agency's content capabilities and customer advisory services.

5.5 Leadership Style and Organizational Culture

The leadership at Make My Holidays, exemplified by Mr. Rezanul Islam's approachable and supportive style, creates an environment conducive to learning and professional development. The leadership philosophy emphasizes customer-centricity, data-driven decision-making, and continuous improvement. Regular team meetings facilitate open communication, shared learning, and alignment on marketing strategies and customer service standards.

The agency's culture of celebrating customer success stories and positive reviews reinforces the team's commitment to service excellence and creates a sense of shared purpose. This positive organizational culture contributes to employee motivation, creativity, and customer service quality.

5.6 SWOT Analysis of Make My Holidays

Strengths:

- Strong digital marketing capabilities across multiple platforms.
- Personalized service model that differentiates from generic OTAs.
- Experienced and passionate team with deep travel knowledge.
- Diverse service portfolio catering to multiple customer segments.
- Positive brand reputation and strong customer referral network.

Weaknesses:

- Limited brand awareness outside Dhaka metropolitan area.
- Dependence on social media platforms vulnerable to algorithm changes.
- Relatively smaller marketing budget compared to established competitors.
- Limited proprietary technology infrastructure compared to OTA competitors.

Opportunities:

- Growing middle class with increasing travel aspirations in Bangladesh.
- Expanding digital connectivity enabling reach to new customer segments.
- Rising demand for domestic tourism following pandemic-era travel restrictions.
- Potential for strategic partnerships with airlines, hotels, and tourism boards.
- Growing social media travel influencer ecosystem in Bangladesh.

Threats:

- Intensifying competition from global OTAs offering direct booking capabilities.
- Currency fluctuations impacting international package pricing.
- Economic downturns reducing discretionary travel spending.
- Regulatory changes affecting visa processing and international travel.

5.7 Business Tools and Technological Infrastructure

The technological infrastructure of Make My Holidays supports an integrated digital marketing ecosystem. Content is created using Canva and video editing tools, scheduled and published through Meta Business Suite, promoted via Facebook Ads Manager, tracked for performance through Google Analytics, and followed up with customer communications through Mailchimp. This integrated stack enables the marketing team to manage the complete customer journey from initial awareness through booking conversion and post-trip engagement.

5.8 PESTEL Analysis of Make My Holidays

Political Factors:

Bangladesh's political environment presents a mixed landscape for travel agencies. Government support for tourism development and digital business creates a broadly favourable operating environment, while occasional political instability can affect consumer confidence and international travel advisories.

Economic Factors:

Rising disposable incomes among Bangladesh's growing middle class are driving increased travel aspirations. Currency fluctuations impact the pricing of international packages, requiring agencies to manage exchange rate risk carefully. Economic uncertainty can rapidly reduce discretionary travel spending, making resilient business models essential.

Social Factors:

Changing social attitudes toward travel, particularly among urban youth, are creating growing demand for travel experiences. Social media's influence on travel inspiration and decision-making increasingly favours agencies with strong digital presences and engaging content strategies.

Technological Factors:

Rapid advances in digital marketing technology, artificial intelligence, and mobile platforms create both opportunities and competitive pressures. Agencies must continuously update their technological capabilities to remain competitive and deliver customer experiences that meet rising digital expectations.

Environmental Factors:

Growing awareness of sustainable tourism is influencing customer preferences, creating opportunities for agencies that incorporate responsible travel practices into their offerings. Environmental concerns such as climate change are also beginning to affect destination popularity and travel seasonality patterns.

Legal Factors:

Travel agencies must navigate complex regulatory environments governing visa services, consumer protection, data privacy, and financial transactions. GDPR-compliant data handling practices are increasingly important for agencies serving international customers or using global digital platforms.

5.9 Porter's Five Forces Analysis

1. Threat of New Entrants: High

The relatively low barriers to entry in the digital travel agency space mean that new competitors can enter the market relatively easily, particularly digital-native startups leveraging social media for customer acquisition.

2. Bargaining Power of Buyers: High

Customers have access to extensive price comparison tools and alternative booking channels, giving them significant bargaining power and making price competitiveness important alongside service differentiation.

3. Bargaining Power of Suppliers: Moderate

Airlines, hotels, and tour operators hold moderate bargaining power, particularly during peak travel periods when capacity is constrained. Strong supplier relationships help agencies like Make My Holidays secure better terms and exclusive offerings.

4. Threat of Substitutes: High

Direct booking websites, OTAs, and DIY travel planning represent significant substitutes for traditional travel agency services, requiring agencies to continuously demonstrate their value-added proposition.

5. Industry Rivalry: High

Intense competition among travel agencies, OTAs, and digital travel platforms drives ongoing pressure on pricing, service innovation, and marketing investment.

CHAPTER – 06

ORGANIZATIONAL STRUCTURE, CULTURE, AND OPERATIONAL TOOLS OF MAKE MY HOLIDAYS

6.1 Introduction to Internship Placement

My internship at Make My Holidays provided a structured and rewarding exposure to the operations of a modern digital travel agency. This internship lasted three months, from 1st January, 2026 to 31st March, 2026. During this period, I was assigned to the digital marketing and customer engagement division, where I was supervised by Mr. Rezanul Islam. My role combined creative content production with analytical marketing tasks, providing a comprehensive introduction to digital travel marketing in practice.

The internship was academically supervised by Ms. Rubaiyat Shabbir, whose guidance ensured that my practical experiences were connected to relevant theoretical frameworks and academic standards. This dual supervision model enriched my learning experience by helping me contextualise real-world observations within established marketing and management theories.

6.2 Key Responsibilities and Assigned Tasks

The core responsibilities during my internship encompassed several interconnected areas of digital marketing and customer engagement:

Social Media Content Creation:

I was responsible for creating engaging social media content for the agency's Facebook and Instagram profiles. This included designing promotional graphics using Canva, writing compelling captions, scheduling posts through Meta Business Suite, and monitoring engagement metrics. The role required a balance of creativity, market understanding, and data-driven decision-making.

Campaign Monitoring and Analytics:

I assisted in monitoring the performance of paid social media advertising campaigns through Facebook Ads Manager, tracking key metrics including reach, engagement, click-through rates, and conversion data. Regular performance reports were prepared to support campaign optimization decisions.

Customer Communication Management:

Responding to customer inquiries across social media platforms and email was an important part of my daily responsibilities. This required professional communication skills, comprehensive knowledge of the agency's service offerings, and the ability to provide accurate, helpful information promptly.

Email Marketing:

I assisted in creating and distributing email marketing campaigns through Mailchimp, including newsletter design, content writing, audience segmentation, and performance analysis.

Market Research:

Conducting research on competitor marketing strategies, emerging destination trends, and digital marketing best practices provided valuable intelligence for the agency's strategic planning.

6.3 Use of Operational Tools

The digital marketing tools employed during my internship were integral to daily workflow and productivity:

- Facebook Ads Manager: Used daily for monitoring campaign performance, making optimization adjustments, and preparing performance reports.
- Canva: The primary tool for creating social media graphics, promotional materials, and visual content. Its intuitive interface and extensive template library enabled efficient, professional content production.
- Meta Business Suite: Used for scheduling social media posts, monitoring comments and messages, and reviewing organic content performance.
- Google Analytics: Consulted regularly to understand website traffic patterns, user behaviour, and campaign-driven conversion metrics.
- Mailchimp: Used for creating email campaigns, managing subscriber lists, and analysing email marketing performance.

6.4 Collaboration and Communication

Effective communication with Mr. Rezanul Islam and other team members was central to the internship experience. Regular check-in meetings provided opportunities to review work in progress, receive feedback, and align on upcoming priorities. The collaborative work environment encouraged the sharing of ideas and creative approaches to marketing challenges.

Communication with customers across digital platforms required a professional yet approachable tone, reflecting the agency's brand personality. Handling customer inquiries about travel packages, pricing, and availability taught me the importance of accurate product knowledge and responsive service in building customer trust and driving booking conversions.

6.5 Learning Environment and Work Culture

The work culture at Make My Holidays was energetic, creative, and deeply customer-focused. The team's genuine passion for travel created an authentic and engaging atmosphere that was reflected in the quality and enthusiasm of the marketing content produced. Being surrounded by travel enthusiasts made it easy to absorb destination knowledge and develop an intuitive sense for the types of content that would resonate with potential customers.

Mr. Rezanul Islam's leadership style was supportive and constructive, providing clear direction while allowing space for creativity and initiative. His detailed feedback on marketing content and campaign strategies accelerated my learning and helped me develop a strong practical understanding of digital travel marketing.

6.6 Professional Development and Skill Enhancement

The internship contributed significantly to my professional development across both technical and interpersonal dimensions. On the technical side, I gained proficiency in key digital marketing tools including Canva, Facebook Ads Manager, Google Analytics, and Mailchimp. I developed practical skills in social media content creation, paid advertising management, email marketing, and digital performance analysis.

Beyond technical skills, the internship enhanced my understanding of customer psychology and communication. Learning to craft messages that inspire travel interest, address customer concerns, and motivate booking decisions provided valuable insights into persuasive communication and customer relationship management.

Time management and project prioritization skills were also significantly developed. Managing multiple simultaneous tasks, including content creation, campaign monitoring, customer communication, and market research, required disciplined workflow management and effective prioritization.

6.7 Summary and Reflections

Reflecting on my internship at Make My Holidays, it is clear that this experience provided far more than a temporary professional engagement. It was a genuine immersion in the realities of digital travel marketing, offering insights and practical skills that will inform my academic studies and career development for years to come. The combination of creative content work, analytical thinking, and customer engagement gave me a comprehensive understanding of how modern travel agencies build their brands and grow their businesses in a digital-first marketplace.

The experience reinforced my conviction that tourism and hospitality management professionals must possess strong digital marketing capabilities to succeed in today's industry. The skills I developed, from social media content creation to performance analytics, are increasingly essential competencies for anyone seeking to build a career in travel, hospitality, or related service industries.

CHAPTER – 07

BUSINESS ANALYSIS OF MAKE MY HOLIDAYS

7.1 Overview of Business Analysis in Organizational Strategy

Strategic business analysis is essential for any organization seeking to understand its competitive position and chart a course for sustainable growth. For Make My Holidays, applying analytical frameworks such as SWOT, PESTEL, and Porter's Five Forces provides a structured perspective on the agency's internal capabilities, external environment, and competitive dynamics. These frameworks enable evidence-based strategic decision-making, guiding investments in marketing capabilities, service development, and operational improvements.

7.2 SWOT Analysis of Make My Holidays

Strengths

Make My Holidays' most significant strength lies in its digital marketing capabilities and brand identity. The agency has invested consistently in building a strong social media presence with engaged followers who regularly interact with and share the agency's content. This organic reach, complemented by targeted paid advertising, creates a cost-effective customer acquisition engine.

The agency's personalized service model is another key strength. Unlike generic OTAs that offer standardized booking interfaces, Make My Holidays provides expert consultation, customized itinerary design, and dedicated customer support throughout the travel process. This high-touch service approach commands premium pricing and drives strong customer loyalty.

The team's genuine passion for travel and destination expertise provides a competitive advantage in content creation and customer advisory services. Staff who have personally experienced the destinations they recommend can speak with authentic enthusiasm and credibility, significantly enhancing customer trust.

Weaknesses

Geographic concentration in Dhaka limits the agency's reach to Bangladesh's substantial regional customer base. Expanding digital marketing efforts to target customers in Chittagong, Sylhet, and other major cities represents an important growth opportunity that has not yet been fully realized.

Dependence on social media platforms, particularly Facebook, creates vulnerability to algorithm changes that can significantly affect organic content reach. Diversifying the marketing channel mix to reduce platform dependence would strengthen the agency's marketing resilience.

Opportunities

The dramatic growth in domestic tourism following the COVID-19 pandemic represents a significant near-term opportunity. Bangladeshi travelers who discovered domestic destinations during travel restriction periods have developed new appreciation for local tourism, creating demand for domestic tour packages and travel experiences.

Strategic partnerships with hotels, airlines, and local tourism operators could enhance the agency's product offerings and pricing competitiveness while reducing commission-related costs. Building an affiliate marketing network could also extend the agency's customer acquisition reach at relatively low cost.

Threats

The rapid growth of global OTAs in the Bangladeshi market represents the most significant strategic threat. These well-resourced competitors offer extensive product catalogues, sophisticated user experiences, and competitive pricing, challenging traditional agencies to differentiate effectively. Maintaining a compelling value proposition based on personalization, local expertise, and superior customer service is essential to countering this threat.

Economic volatility and currency fluctuations create ongoing pricing challenges for agencies offering international travel packages denominated in foreign currencies. Developing robust foreign exchange management strategies is important for protecting profitability in uncertain economic environments.

7.3 PESTEL Analysis

Political Factors

Bangladesh's tourism policy environment has become increasingly supportive in recent years, with government recognition of tourism's economic potential driving investment in destination development and promotional activities. However, political uncertainties and occasional governance challenges can affect investor confidence and international tourism flows. Make My Holidays must monitor political developments carefully to anticipate changes in the operating environment.

Economic Factors

The growth of Bangladesh's middle class and rising disposable incomes represent fundamental drivers of travel demand. However, inflationary pressures and economic uncertainty can quickly dampen consumer spending on discretionary items like travel. The agency's diversified product portfolio, spanning budget to premium offerings, provides some resilience against economic fluctuations.

Social Factors

Evolving social attitudes toward travel, particularly among urban millennials and Gen Z consumers, are reshaping travel preferences. These demographic groups prioritize experiences over possessions, are heavily influenced by social media content, and expect seamless digital service experiences. The agency's strong digital presence and experience-focused marketing approach are well-aligned with these social trends.

Technological Factors

Advances in artificial intelligence, machine learning, and data analytics are creating new opportunities for personalizing customer experiences and optimizing marketing efficiency. Agencies that invest in these capabilities will be able to deliver more relevant, timely marketing messages and more precisely targeted advertising campaigns, driving improved conversion rates and customer lifetime values.

Environmental Factors

Growing awareness of sustainable tourism is influencing destination choices and travel behaviour, particularly among younger, environmentally conscious travelers. Agencies that develop sustainable tourism product offerings and communicate responsible travel practices authentically will be better positioned to capture the growing sustainable travel market segment.

Legal Factors

Consumer protection regulations governing travel services, data privacy laws applicable to digital marketing activities, and financial regulations affecting payment processing all require careful compliance management. The agency's data handling practices must align with applicable privacy regulations, including protections for customer financial and personal information.

7.4 Porter's Five Forces Analysis

1. Threat of New Entrants: Moderate to High

The travel agency market continues to attract new entrants, particularly digital entrepreneurs leveraging social media for low-cost customer acquisition. While established agencies benefit from brand recognition and supplier relationships, the relatively low capital requirements for digital-first travel businesses sustain a moderate to high threat of new competition.

2. Bargaining Power of Buyers: High

Price comparison tools, OTA alternatives, and social media product reviews give customers substantial bargaining power. Make My Holidays counters this through personalized service, exclusive product offerings, and relationship-based customer loyalty programs that create switching costs and emotional brand attachment.

3. Bargaining Power of Suppliers: Moderate

Airlines and major hotel chains hold significant bargaining power, particularly during peak travel seasons when capacity constraints limit negotiating flexibility. Building and maintaining strong supplier relationships is essential for securing competitive rates and exclusive offerings.

4. Threat of Substitutes: High

Direct booking through airline and hotel websites, OTA platforms, and DIY travel planning via travel blogs and social media all represent significant substitutes. The agency's personalized consultation services, destination expertise, and end-to-end travel management capabilities provide the primary differentiation from these self-service alternatives.

5. Industry Rivalry: High

Intense competition across the travel agency market drives continuous pressure on pricing, service quality, and marketing investment. Agencies that successfully differentiate through specialization, digital capabilities, or exceptional customer service are better positioned to sustain competitive advantages in this challenging environment.

7.5 Competitor Analysis

Tour BD

Tour BD is one of Bangladesh's most established travel agencies, with a long history of serving domestic and international travel markets. Their strength lies in brand recognition and a broad supplier network, but their relatively traditional marketing approach has been slow to evolve in the digital era. Make My Holidays' more agile digital marketing capabilities and personalized service model provide meaningful competitive advantages in targeting younger, digitally active customer segments.

Explore BD

Explore BD represents the new generation of digital-native travel platforms, targeting budget-conscious younger travelers through social media marketing and competitive pricing. While their cost-focused model attracts high volumes of budget travelers, their relatively standardized offerings lack the personalization and service depth that Make My Holidays delivers to its customer base.

Guide Tours

Guide Tours occupies a specialized niche in the adventure and eco-tourism segment, targeting a distinct customer demographic with specialized offerings. Rather than direct competition, there is potential for complementary partnership opportunities, particularly in bundling adventure experiences with broader travel packages.

7.6 Findings and Discussion

The present study and internship experience at Make My Holidays reveal several important findings regarding digital marketing practices and customer engagement strategies in the travel agency sector of Bangladesh. These findings are derived from direct observation, participation in marketing activities, interaction with organizational personnel, and analysis of the internal and external business environment.

One of the major findings is that digital marketing has become the primary medium for customer acquisition and brand communication. Make My Holidays relies heavily on social media platforms, particularly Facebook, to promote travel packages, interact with customers, and generate leads. Digital tools such as Facebook Ads Manager, Google Analytics, Canva, and email marketing platforms have significantly enhanced the efficiency and reach of marketing activities. This finding indicates that modern travel agencies are increasingly shifting from traditional promotional methods to technology-driven marketing approaches.

Another important finding is that customer engagement plays a vital role in developing customer loyalty and maintaining long-term relationships. Prompt responses to customer inquiries, personalized communication, and continuous interaction through digital channels contribute positively to customer satisfaction. The study reveals that maintaining strong customer relationships is equally important as attracting new customers in ensuring sustainable business growth.

The SWOT analysis demonstrates that Make My Holidays possesses several strengths, including a customer-oriented service approach, strong digital presence, diversified travel services, and the ability to adapt to changing market conditions. However, certain weaknesses such as limited financial resources, dependence on digital platforms, and intense market competition may hinder future expansion. Opportunities arising from increasing internet penetration, growing travel demand, and digital transformation provide considerable prospects for business growth. At the same time, the presence of numerous competitors and online travel agencies poses significant threats to the organization.

The PESTEL analysis indicates that technological and social factors exert considerable influence on the operations of travel agencies. Rapid technological advancement, increasing social media usage, and changing customer preferences have transformed the way travel services are marketed and delivered. Furthermore, economic fluctuations, regulatory requirements, and external uncertainties continue to affect the performance and sustainability of tourism-related businesses.

The competitive analysis reveals that the travel industry has become highly competitive due to the emergence of online travel agencies and the growing number of private travel service providers. Customers now possess greater access to information and multiple service alternatives, making service quality, trust, and customer experience critical determinants of competitive advantage. Therefore, maintaining superior customer service and continuous innovation are essential for sustaining market position.

Another significant finding is that digital competencies and analytical skills have become indispensable for tourism and hospitality professionals. During the internship period, practical exposure to content creation, campaign monitoring, customer communication, and performance analysis provided valuable insights into the application of theoretical concepts in real-world business situations. The experience demonstrates that academic knowledge combined with practical skills enhances professional readiness and employability.

Overall, the findings suggest that digital transformation, customer relationship management, and continuous innovation are the key factors influencing the success and sustainability of travel agencies in Bangladesh. The study further highlights that organizations capable of adapting to changing technological and market environments are more likely to achieve long-term competitive advantages and maintain customer loyalty in an increasingly dynamic tourism industry.

CHAPTER – 08

INTERNSHIP ROLE AND RESPONSIBILITIES

8.1 Overview of Internship Role and Responsibilities

The internship at Make My Holidays offered a transformative professional experience that was simultaneously creative, analytical, and practically oriented. My primary role focused on digital marketing operations and customer engagement, encompassing social media content creation, advertising campaign support, customer communication management, and marketing performance analysis. Under the direct supervision of Mr. Rezanul Islam, I was expected to contribute meaningfully to the agency's ongoing marketing activities while developing the professional skills required for a career in digital tourism marketing.

The internship structure provided a progressive introduction to the agency's marketing operations, beginning with orientation to the tools and platforms used, and advancing through increasing levels of responsibility as my confidence and capabilities developed. By the end of the three-month period, I was managing several content creation and customer communication responsibilities with significant autonomy, reflecting the trust and confidence placed in my abilities by the team.

8.2 Daily Work Environment and Task Management

Daily work at Make My Holidays was characterized by a dynamic mix of creative and analytical tasks. Mornings typically began with reviewing social media performance data from the previous day, responding to customer inquiries that had arrived overnight, and preparing content for scheduled posts. The afternoon hours were often dedicated to longer-term projects including campaign planning, email marketing content development, and market research tasks.

Task prioritization was guided by the marketing calendar, campaign deadlines, and emerging customer service needs. The fast-paced nature of social media marketing required quick thinking and adaptability, as trending content opportunities, breaking travel news, or customer service situations sometimes required immediate responses outside the planned content schedule.

8.3 Collaboration with Supervisor and Team Members

The collaborative culture at Make My Holidays made working with Mr. Rezanul Islam and other team members a genuinely enriching experience. Mr. Rana's detailed feedback on marketing content, advertising strategies, and customer communication approaches was invaluable in developing my practical marketing skills. His patient and constructive mentorship style created a safe environment for learning through both successes and mistakes.

Collaboration with other team members provided exposure to different aspects of the agency's operations, from tour operations and product development to customer service and finance. This cross-functional exposure broadened my understanding of how the various business functions integrate to create the customer experience and sustain the agency's competitive position.

8.4 Skills Acquired During the Internship

The internship delivered substantial skill development across multiple dimensions:

Digital Marketing Technical Skills:

- Proficiency in Facebook Ads Manager for campaign creation, targeting, and optimization.
- Competence in Google Analytics for traffic analysis and conversion tracking.
- Graphic design capabilities using Canva for professional marketing content production.
- Email marketing skills including campaign design, audience segmentation, and performance analysis using Mailchimp.
- Social media management including content scheduling, community management, and performance reporting.

Marketing Strategy and Analytics:

- Understanding of digital marketing funnel concepts and customer journey mapping.
- Ability to interpret campaign performance data and derive actionable optimization insights.
- Knowledge of content strategy principles and audience engagement best practices.

Customer Communication and Service:

- Professional customer inquiry management across social media and email channels.
- Understanding of travel product knowledge requirements for effective customer consultation.
- Skills in managing customer expectations and communicating transparently about service capabilities and limitations.

8.5 Real-Life Exposure to the Tourism Industry

Beyond the specific digital marketing skills developed, the internship provided invaluable exposure to the broader dynamics of Bangladesh's travel industry. Observing how consumer trends, seasonal patterns, and external events influence travel demand and booking behaviour provided a practical education in travel industry economics that complements the theoretical knowledge gained through academic studies.

The experience of engaging directly with customers across their travel planning journeys, from initial inspiration through to booking confirmation, provided deep insights into customer psychology and the role of marketing communications in shaping travel decisions. This customer-centric perspective will be invaluable in any future role within tourism, hospitality, or related service industries.

8.6 Performance Evaluation and Feedback

Performance during the internship was evaluated through regular one-on-one meetings with Mr. Rezanul Islam, reviewing the quality and impact of marketing content, campaign performance contributions, and customer service interactions. Feedback was provided constructively and specifically, enabling rapid skill development and improvement in areas requiring refinement.

The transparency of the performance feedback process was particularly valuable. Understanding clearly where I was meeting expectations, where I was exceeding them, and where improvement was needed enabled targeted development efforts and a clear sense of progress throughout the internship period.

8.7 Long-Term Impact on Academic and Career Goals

This internship has had a significant and lasting impact on my academic and career trajectory. It has confirmed my interest in pursuing a career at the intersection of tourism, hospitality, and digital marketing, where the skills I have developed through both academic study and practical experience can be applied to create compelling customer experiences and drive business growth.

The practical digital marketing skills acquired during the internship have already begun enhancing my academic work, enabling me to bring real-world examples and tool experience to theoretical marketing discussions. More broadly, the experience has strengthened my professional confidence, clarified my career aspirations, and provided a portfolio of practical accomplishments that will support future employment applications in the tourism and digital marketing sectors.

CHAPTER – 09

CORPORATE SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY (CSR) AND ETHICAL PRACTICES OF MAKE MY HOLIDAYS

9.1 Introduction to CSR and Ethics in the Travel Sector

Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) and ethical business practices are increasingly important considerations for travel agencies operating in today's conscious consumer marketplace. As travelers become more aware of the social, environmental, and ethical dimensions of their travel choices, the agencies and operators they choose to work with are being held to higher standards of responsibility and transparency. For Make My Holidays, CSR is not merely a reputational strategy but a genuine commitment to conducting business in ways that create positive value for customers, employees, communities, and the environment.

9.2 CSR Philosophy and Vision of Make My Holidays

Make My Holidays' CSR philosophy is grounded in the belief that responsible business practices and commercial success are mutually reinforcing rather than contradictory. The agency recognizes that long-term business sustainability depends on maintaining the trust of customers, employees, and communities. Its CSR approach encompasses responsible marketing communications, fair employment practices, support for sustainable tourism, and contribution to Bangladesh's tourism development ecosystem.

The agency's leadership team, with Mr. Rezanul Islam playing an important role in embedding CSR values in marketing practices, ensures that the agency's external communications are honest, transparent, and respectful of customer trust. This commitment to marketing ethics is particularly important in the travel sector, where misleading promotional practices can result in disappointed customers and reputational damage.

9.3 Employee Well-being and Ethical Work Environment

Make My Holidays demonstrates its CSR commitment through its treatment of employees. The agency maintains fair employment practices, provides a supportive learning environment for interns and junior staff, and fosters a culture of respect and professional development. The internship program exemplifies this commitment, providing genuine learning experiences and mentorship rather than merely exploiting low-cost labour.

9.4 Community and Education Initiatives

As part of its broader community contribution, Make My Holidays supports Bangladesh's tourism development by promoting lesser-known domestic destinations, creating awareness of sustainable travel practices, and contributing to the development of tourism industry skills through internship and training programs. These activities help develop the overall tourism ecosystem, benefiting not only the agency but the broader industry and the communities dependent on tourism activity.

9.5 Ethical Client Relations and Transparency

Ethical customer relations are central to Make My Holidays' business model. The agency maintains transparent pricing practices, provides accurate and honest information about travel destinations and service capabilities, and manages customer expectations responsibly. When travel conditions change or services cannot be delivered as promised, the agency communicates proactively with affected customers and offers fair remedies.

Data privacy and security are also important ethical considerations. Customer financial and personal information is handled with appropriate security measures, and data is not shared with third parties without customer consent. These practices align with global data protection standards and protect customer trust.

9.6 Environmentally Conscious Practices

Recognizing the environmental impact of tourism, Make My Holidays is beginning to incorporate sustainability considerations into its operations and product offerings. The agency is exploring the development of eco-tourism packages that support conservation efforts and local communities, promoting responsible travel behaviours among its customers, and reducing the environmental footprint of its own office operations through paperless processes and energy efficiency measures.

As sustainable tourism continues to gain prominence among Bangladeshi travelers, the agency's commitment to environmental responsibility will become an increasingly important competitive differentiator and brand asset.

9.7 Future CSR and Ethical Goals

Looking ahead, Make My Holidays aims to deepen its CSR commitments through the development of a formal sustainability strategy, increased investment in employee development programs, expansion of community tourism initiatives in partnership with local tourism operators, and adoption of recognized sustainability certification frameworks.

These initiatives will strengthen the agency's brand reputation among conscious consumers while contributing meaningfully to Bangladesh's sustainable tourism development.

CHAPTER – 10

CONCLUSION AND RECOMMENDATIONS

10.1 Conclusion and Recommendations

The completion of this internship report marks the culmination of a transformative three-month professional experience at Make My Holidays. This internship provided a comprehensive introduction to the realities of digital travel marketing in Bangladesh, offering practical exposure to the tools, strategies, and customer engagement approaches that drive success in the modern travel agency sector. The experience has been invaluable in bridging the gap between academic marketing theory and practical professional application.

Through immersive engagement in social media content creation, advertising campaign management, customer communication, and performance analytics, I gained a deep appreciation for the sophistication and strategic importance of digital marketing in the travel industry. Make My Holidays' integrated approach to digital customer engagement, combining creative content production with data-driven optimization, exemplifies the capabilities that modern travel agencies must develop to compete effectively in an increasingly digital marketplace.

The strategic analyses conducted throughout this report, including SWOT, PESTEL, and Porter's Five Forces frameworks, revealed that Make My Holidays occupies a strong competitive position built on genuine digital marketing expertise, personalized service delivery, and authentic customer relationships. However, the agency also faces significant challenges from intensifying digital competition, platform dependency risks, and geographic concentration limitations that must be addressed to sustain long-term competitive advantage.

From a personal development perspective, the internship has been transformative. The technical digital marketing skills acquired, including proficiency in Facebook Ads Manager, Google Analytics, Canva, and Mailchimp, are directly applicable to future roles in tourism marketing and customer experience management. Equally important are the softer skills developed through customer communication, team collaboration, and performance feedback processes, which will serve me well across a wide range of professional contexts.

The experience has reinforced my commitment to pursuing a career at the intersection of tourism, hospitality, and digital marketing, where the combination of industry passion and digital capability can create meaningful customer experiences and drive sustainable business growth. It has also deepened my understanding of the strategic importance of responsible business practices, ethical marketing, and customer trust in building enduring competitive advantages in the service sector.

Based on my internship observations, I offer the following strategic recommendations for Make My Holidays to strengthen its competitive position and accelerate its growth:

- Expand Geographic Reach: Invest in targeted digital advertising campaigns aimed at potential customers in major Bangladeshi cities beyond Khulna, including Dhaka and Chittagong, to grow the agency's national customer base.
- Diversify Marketing Channels: Reduce dependence on Facebook by developing capabilities on Instagram, YouTube, and emerging platforms such as TikTok to reach younger demographic segments and build channel diversification resilience.
- Invest in Video Content: Develop a video content strategy targeting YouTube and Instagram Reels, as video consistently delivers superior engagement rates and is particularly effective for travel inspiration content.
- Develop a Customer Loyalty Program: Create a structured loyalty program that rewards repeat bookings and referrals, building stronger customer relationships and increasing lifetime customer value.
- Embrace Sustainable Tourism: Develop a formal sustainable tourism product range and communicate the agency's environmental commitment authentically, targeting the growing segment of conscious travelers.
- Strengthen Analytics Capabilities: Invest in advanced analytics tools that enable more sophisticated customer segmentation, personalization, and campaign optimization to improve marketing return on investment.
- Expand Influencer Partnerships: Build a structured influencer marketing program in partnership with Bangladeshi travel content creators to amplify brand reach and generate authentic, engaging content.

In conclusion, the internship at Make My Holidays has been an exceptional learning experience that has prepared me for a career in tourism and hospitality marketing with significantly enhanced digital capabilities, practical industry knowledge, and professional confidence.
